corvaglia group announces U.S. expansion in Georgia

'We think about your caps, so you can think of everything else'

Atlanta, GA - Today, Switzerland based corvaglia group announced plans to build a new manufacturing facility in Newnan, Georgia. The company provides plastic cap and closure technology solutions to the beverage industry around the world. The new U.S. production facility will compliment corvaglia's existing advanced manufacturing operations in Eschlikon, Switzerland and Ixtlahuaca, Mexico.

corvaglia's business begins and ends with closure design and as a vertically integrated supplier of caps and closures for PET (polyethylene terephthalate) containers, they deliver expertise all along the value chain. Founded in 1991, corvaglia continues to focus on one-piece closure technologies deployed from the design concept all the way through to the consumer. This end-to-end market approach is embodied in their slogan 'Think, Shape, Make, Apply' caps.

The new U.S. facility will be operational by year-end and utilize corvaglia's in-house proprietary moulds to manufacture lightweight one-piece caps and closures for the North American beverage market. Additionally, corvaglia will bring high-speed digital printing to the new U.S. facility that will provide valuable branding opportunities with virtually no limitations to artwork or graphics.
